Lankan PM stresses urgency for economic reform plan

AP COLOMBO

Sri Lanka's prime minister Said on Thursday that he will quickly prepare an economic reform programme and seek approval from the International Monetary Fund - because global inflation and the financial impact of Russia's invasion of Ukraine on other countries could limit their ability to help the island nation.

Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe said that officials have reached agreement on basic reforms concepts with the IMF and that he plans to have the economic reform program ready within two weeks. After it is finalised, an IMF delegation will visit Sri Lanka to evaluate the programme.

"I have placed my special attention on this because of the present global situation, the war in Ukraine and global inflation. From what we can see a number of countries may have to face economic problems like ours," Wickremesinghe said. He added: "At the moment the United States and the Europe are spending a lot on the war and there is a possibility of the aid given to us being reduced.

Sri Lanka is nearly bankrupt with an acute foreign currency crisis that resulted in a foreign debt default. The country announced last month that it is suspending nearly $7 billion foreign debt repayment due for this year out of about $25 billion due through 2026. Sri Lanka's total foreign debt stands at $51 billion. The IMF said in a statement Thursday said that a team remotely concluded initial discussions about Sri Lanka's reform plan on Tuesday.

"The team made good progress in assessing the economic situation and in identifying policy priorities to be taken going forward," the statement said.

The statement added that discussions focused on restoring fiscal sustainability while protecting the vulnerable and poor; ensuring monetary policy credibility and exchange rate regimes; preserving financial sector stability; and structural reforms to enhance economic growth and strengthen governance.

'We expect that these discussions will help the authori-ties formulate their reform programme," the IMF said.

Sri Lanka's former finance minister Ali Sabry has said that badly timed tax cuts led to a reduction in government revenue, reducing the country's ability to borrow and releasing existing reserves to maintain the US dollar at a fixed rate against the local currency - and that those factors triggered the foreign currency crisis. Ălso the CÓVID-19 pandemic nearly severely reduced tourism revenue, one of the country's economic lifelines. The economic crisis has caused a reduction of imports of goods and industrial raw material, prompting an acute shortage of essential items like food, medicine, cooking gas and other fuel, toilet paper and even matches. Sri Lankans for months have been forced to wait in lines lasting hours outside stores to buy fuel and cooking gas. Protesters have occupied the entrance to President Gotabaya Rajapaksa's office for nearly 50 days, demanding his resignation because they blame him and his powerful, and politically connected family for the economic crises. The protests have nearly dismantled the powerful Rajapaksa political dynasty after the president's brother resigned as prime minister amid countrywide violence earlier this month, when his supporters attacked peaceful protesters.

China, Russia veto new UN sanctions on North Korea

AP UNITED NATIONS

China and Russia vetoed a U.N. Resolution sponsored by the United States on Thursday that would have imposed tough new sanctions on North Korea for its spate of intercontinental ballistic missile launches that can be used to deliver nuclear weapons. The vote in the 15-member Security Council was 13-2 and marked a first serious division among the five veto-wielding permanent members of the U.N.'s most powerful body on a North Korea sanctions resolution.

A united Security Council imposed sanctions after North Korea's first nuclear test explosion in 2006 and tightened them over the years seeking to rein in its nuclear and ballistic missile programs and cut off funding.

U.S. Ambassador Linda Thomas-Greenfield appealed for unity before Thursday's vote, calling North Korea's six ICBM tests this year "a threat to the entire international com-the council in December 2017, members committed to further restricting petroleum exports to North Korea if it conducted a ballistic missile launch capable of reaching intercontinental ranges

North Korea suspended ICBM tests for five years, but she urged the council to act against its "dangerous and threatening" ICBM launches in the last five months including one on Wednesday.

China's U.N. Ambassador Zhang Jun reiterated Beijing's opposition to new sanctions against North Korea ahead of Thursday's vote. He called instead for the United States to political solution to the situation on the Korean Peninsula, where the 1950-53 war between North Korea and South Korea stopped with an armistice, not peace treaty.

With tensions on the peninsula, Zhang said, it's important to stay calm, avoid any provocative actions and "really give hope" to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea -- the country's official name -- by lifting some sanctions instead of imposing new ones.

"We do not think addi-tional sanctions will be helpful in responding to current situation," he told reporters Thursday. "It can only get situation even worse. ... so that's what we really want to avoid.

Alluding to U.S. "pivot to Asia" reflecting rise of China as an economic and military power and America's most significant competitor, Zhang said, "We do not want to see anyone make use of DPRK sittake "meaningful, practical uation or Korean Peninsula sitactions" to resume its dialogue uation as a card for their stratewith the country and find a gic or geopolitical agenda."

Republicans block domestic terrorism bill, gun policy debate

AP WASHINGTON

Democrats' first attempt at responding to back-toback mass shootings in Buffalo and Uvalde, Texas, failed in Senate as Republicans blocked a domestic terrorism bill that would have opened debate on difficult questions surrounding hate crimes and gun safety.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., tried to nudge Republicans into taking up a domestic terrorism bill that had cleared House quickly last week after mass shootings at a grocery store in Buffalo, New York, and a church in Southern California targeting people of color.

He said it could become basis for negotiation. But Thursday vote failed along party lines, raising fresh doubts about possibility of robust debate, let alone eventual compromise, on gun safety measures. The final vote was 47-47, short of 60 needed to take up bill. All Republicans voted against it. "We're disappointed,"

"The president has been very clear that's it's time to act," she said. Rejection of bill, just two days after mass shooting at a Texas elementary school that killed 19 children and two teachers, brought into sharp relief Congress' persistent failure to pass legislation to curb nation's epidemic of gun violence.

It also underscored prevalence of mass shootings in the U.S. As Congress struggled to react to earlier shootings but was confronted by yet another massacre. Schumer said he will give bipartisan negotiations in Senate about two weeks, while Congress is away for a break, to try to forge a compromise bill that could pass 50-50 Senate, where 60 votes will be needed to overcome a filibuster

AP WELLINGTON (NEW ZEALAND)

When China signed a security pact with the Solomon Islands in April it raised concerns from the US and its allies that Beijing may be seeking a military outpost in the South Pacific, an area of traditional American naval dominance.

But China upped the ante further this week, reaching out to the Solomon Islands and nine other island nations with a sweeping security proposal that, even if only partially realised, could give it a presence in the Pacific much nearer Hawaii, Australia, New Zealand and on the doorstep of the strategic American territory of Guam.

China insists its proposals are targeted at regional stability and economic growth, but experts and governments fear that beneath the surface, it is a brazen attempt to expand its influence in a strategically critical area.
